Thomas Heyward, Jr (1746 - 1807) was the eldest son of Daniel Heyward, the wealthiest planter in the Beaufort District at the time of the American Revolution. Heyward studied law in England, returned to South Carolina and practiced law. In 1776 Heyward became one of the South Carolina delegates to the Second Continental Congress. He was one of South Carolina's four signers of the Declaration of Independence. During the war he was active in military operations and was a prisoner of the British for over a year. After the revolution Heyward participated in the convention which crafted South Carolina's Constitution. He was born and died at the traditional family home, Old House Plantation, which was burned in 1864. Heyward's grave is in the family cemetery near the ruins of the house. The Heywood family remained prominent in South Carolina and one of his descendants, Dubose Heyward, received national distinction as the author of the novel Porgy which was later adopted by George Gershwin into the opera Porgy and Bess.

Purysburg

In the spring of 1779 Purysburg, initially a settlement of Swiss colonists trying to establish the silk trade, was occupied by Patriot forces. British forces under Brigadier General Prevost crossed the Savannah River and advanced on the village in Prevost's attempt to capture Charleston. On April 29, 1779, the two forces met near Purysburg. The contest delayed the British advance so that Patriot forces under General William Moultrie could escape to conduct a successful defense of Charleston.

Pon Pon Chapel of Ease - (1725) was one of two churches serving St. Bartholomew's Parish. In 1754 a brick chapel was erected to replace an earlier wooden structure. It was the home church for many of the local leaders in the Revolutionary War including Isaac Hayne and Aedanus Burke.

Colonel Isaac Hayne, Jr. - served in the Colleton County Regiment until captured and paroled in May 1780. The British later demanded that Hayne take up arms against the Patriots in violation of his parole. Hayne refused and rejoined the Patriot forces. He was captured and imprisoned in Charleston. Hayne was charged with treason and hanged on August 4, 1781. Buried in Jacksonborough in the family cemetery, he was called "a noble martyr on behalf of liberty."

Battle of Parker's Ferry - On August 10, 1781, Francis Marion's men lured the British into a classic ambush on a causeway near Parker's Ferry where they suffered 125 killed and 80 wounded compared to Patriot losses of one killed and three wounded. Parker's Ferry is the exemplar of Marion's guerilla warfare tactics which contribute to the extraordinary legend of the Swamp Fox.

The South Carolina General Assembly convened in Jacksonborough in early 1782. It's most important work was its decision to confiscate Loyalist estates. This volatile issue became more heated when John Laurens proposed that slaves from confiscated estates be enlisted in the Continental army. His proposal won few adherents, though an opponent noted that legislators fought a "hard Battle on the Subject of arming the Blacks."

Jim Capers

African American Revolutionary War Veteran

Jim Capers was born into slavery in South Carolina. During the American Revolution he served as a drummer for seven years participating in many major battles including Savannah, Port Royal, Camden, Eutaw Springs (where he was seriously wounded), and even Yorktown. Capers eventually obtained his freedom after the war. He died in Alabama at the age of 111. He was posthumously awarded a pension for his service.

BREACH INLET
The beautiful Atlantic Ocean Inlet has separated Sullivan's Island from Isle of Palms for centuries. The shape and sandbars change constantly, as strong and dangerous tidal currents flow into and out of the salt marsh between the islands and the mainland.
Seven Indians hunted on Hilton Head in 1680 before British settlement of Charleston in 1670, and generations of settlers used this route across the marsh for centuries.
The first Breach Inlet bridge was an obsolete trolley bridge that had become a mere ramp on Isle of Palms in 1886. Residential and recreational communities grew around the inlet after automobile bridges connected the islands and the mainland.

Victory at Breach Inlet

This scene occurred in the creek beyond the bridge. There was no bridge in 1776.

British fleet soldiers attack from the south and are driven back by American riflemen.

British warships fire from a creek in support of the amphibious crossing.

Long Island (now Isle of Palms)

British forces bombard Sullivan's Island from Green Island (now Little Green Island)

Under American fire, the British fleet disperses, turns around, and retreats.

THE BATTLE OF EUTAW SPRINGS

A Close and Deadly Clash of Veteran Troops

Greene's army at Eutaw Springs consisted of regular soldiers and militia, or part-time citizen soldiers. Stewart's force was composed of British regulars and Loyalists, Americans fighting to preserve British rule. Each army mustered about 2000 men, most of them veterans.

General Nathaniel Greene led an American army into South Carolina in the spring of 1781 to reclaim the state from the British. At Eutaw Springs his army included South Carolina militia under Francis Marion and Andrew Pickens, who had been fighting in the state as guerrillas for over a year.

Infantry—foot soldiers carrying single-shot, muzzle loading muskets—formed the bulk of both forces. Maneuvering in close ranks, they fired their muskets in short-range volleys and then charged with bayonets. Several small cannons supported both armies in the front lines. Small reserves of cavalry forces waited to exploit breakthroughs or cover retreats. While mounted, the cavalymen fought mostly with heavy sabers. These tactics and weapons ensured that the opposing forces at Eutaw Springs would clash at close, deadly range.

Narrative Best Practices:

- Use Word Version to Practice (Watch character count)

Project Summary

- 1) Elevator Speech
- 2) How does it relate to the American Revolution in SC?

Deliverables / Impact

- 1) Tangible items that can be provided by the grant budget.
- 2) Measurement of Success
- 3) Longevity

Budget Best Practices:

- Don't create the budget based on the most amount available.
- Do your homework – get quotes.
- Not all budget categories may be compatible with your grant type. Feel free to skip a section. For example: we do not expect to see land acquisition in the County 250 Organizing Grants.
- If the grant request amount is part of a larger budget, please only include SC250 funding requests in each breakdown section.
- Make sure to not exceed the total amount available for this grant type in the breakdown SC250 request sections. This up to amount is listed on the Funding Opportunity main page.
- For the County 250 Organizing Grants, the SC250 Requested Amount must total $3000 exactly. (However, the total budget could be larger if you have additional funding from other sources. If there are any additional funds in your total budget, document them in the Cost Share / Matching Funds section.)
- Personnel refers to staffing, while contractual refers to any person you are hiring for a specific task.
- Administrative staffing should represent no more than 20% of the budget request.

For what can't you pay?

Partnerships / Matching Funds

Even if not “required” to apply, SC250
encourages Cost Share!

- If your grant does require a match, remember that the percentage is part of the total budget not 20% or 50% of your ask.

Matching Funds

The formula for calculating the match is:

SC250 Award Amount = Adjusted (Total) Project Costs
SC250 Share Percentage

Required Recipient's Share Percentage x Adjusted Project Costs = Required Match

Example: 80%/20% match requirement—for a SC250 award amount of $300,000, match would be calculated as follows:

$$\frac{$300,000}{.80} = $375,000$$

$$.20 \times $375,000 = $75,000 \text{ match}$$
